biased/discriminative behaviors from peers ranging from microaggressions to blatant acts.

“In 16 years of being an administrator, I have yet to work with a school counselor who has demonstrated a better ability to meet the needs of students, the school community and positively impact the school climate as Mr. Shervington has done,” said Kevin A. Molin, Ed.D., principal, Susquehannock High School. “His high level of empathy and authentic concern for others shines through in this work. Students and families can sense his genuineness and trust him instantly.”

“ASCA’s School Counselor of the Year program shines a valuable spotlight on the school counseling profession, bringing attention to exceptional school counselors who are supporting K–
